A nationally recognized leader in experiential education, the University of New Haven offers a comprehensive pre-academic English for Academic Purposes (EAP) program. It addresses the English language proficiency requirements of students who have been conditionally accepted into the University of New Haven to pursue their undergraduate or graduate degree studies. Our program is unique because we provide students with listening, reading, speaking, and writing English preparatory work in their majors.

Program Highlights

- Conditional acceptance into the University of New Haven for most majors
- English language proficiency instruction designed for majors in our schools and colleges, and custom programs available for working professionals
- Study skills courses
- Afternoon intensive tutoring
- Extensive academic advisement, including advising from a faculty mentor
- Progress tracking and benchmarking
- Additional support in adjusting to American culture, including activities with a University student mentor who has experienced success at the university level
- Diversity, safety and inclusiveness are promoted and fostered throughout our AEPP and university
- Housing available, both on and off campus
- Access to all University facilities

Additional Information

No official IELTS or TOEFL score is required for the University of New Haven Academic English Preparatory Program. You can complete the Focal Skills Placement Test instead. The program can take a minimum of four, eight, or twelve months to complete, depending on the English Proficiency level of the student.
